

Sending and receiving of electronic mail attached with a large-sized file can be made easy.

When a size of mail to be sent exceeds an upper limit value of mail size, the mail is sent by automatically dividing the sent mail into a plurality of sub-mail sections, and the plurality of received items of divided mail are automatically reconstituted to a single original form of the mail data.